Letter From Fauquier.

[Correspondence of the ALEXANDRIA GAZETTE.]
MARSHALL, June 7, 1889.—Travel on all sides—by the cars and on our public highways—for a while, owing to the flood, was suspended. The roads were never more miserable since the April snow storm, the prostrated telephone wires and poles helping to obstruct the traveler's progress. Of course the commissioner of roads wisely, like the "Arkansas traveler," decided when it rains and the roads are bad no sensible man would try them, far less bother about repairs.

For true enjoyment at this season there is no place like the country, with the ringing of forest birds and the air fragrant with the perfume of the wild rose and grape and apple blossoms. The prospect for abundant wheat, oat, rye and hay crops has not been better for many years past, especially if now we have hot suns and cool nights.

The late heavy freshet has interfered with the dairy industry, though the old time buckster and road wagon have been made to supplement the freight cars, to send milk and butter to market.

The late meeting of the N. E. Medical Society at Marshall proved a happy and profitable reunion at the office of Doctor Henry Frost, sr., the president. The doctors, among whom were Doctor Clark, of Haymarket; Dr. Copeland, of Rectortown; Dr. Clark, of The Plains; Dr. T. Smith, Bethel Academy; Dr. Hodgkin, of Warrenton; Dr. Henry Frost, jr., who lately graduated at the University of Maryland and passed the medical examining board of Virginia with high distinction, and finally Dr. Blackwell, a medical student, were all sumptuously entertained at dinner by Dr. Frost, sr.

In social circles here we have among late arrivals, Mrs. Dr. Lewis, of Alexandria; Mrs. Addison Carter, of Winchester, and Miss Meade. The congregations at the churches are excellent. Schools public and private will soon be closed.

To REVOLUTIONIZE NAVIGATION.—The Pneumatic propulsion vessel Eureka, owned and operated by Mr. J. Lecky, of Brooklyn, was given a trial in the East river yesterday. The motive power is furnished by explosions through apertures, one in each quarter. The explosions are produced by air and petroleum, the ignition being effected by sparks from an electric wire. In going up the river the Eureka had a strong flood tide in her favor and appeared to be moving at the rate of from five to six knots an hour. When Mr. Lecky attempted to put the Eureka about and stem the tide she came around so awkwardly that a helping line had to be thrown her from the accompanying tug. When the Eureka was fairly pointed she bravely breasted the strong flood tide, puffing all the time at a great rate. She made very good headway. Machinery that is intended to revolutionize the present mode of propelling boats is now being built for a boat of about 200 tons register, that lies at the foot of 20th street, Brooklyn. The inventor, Dr. Jackson, says he is expending $10,000 a week in perfecting his ideas. Much secrecy is maintained, but it is said that the force to be used is hydraulic. The Worthington Pump Company is building a steam pump for the boat, but it has been delayed, it is said, by finding that ordinary metals are not strong enough to resist the pressure that will be exerted. It, however, has decided to try cast steel. It is alleged that the builders expect to realize a speed of thirty miles an hour with ordinary vessels.—New York News.

JUDGE WYLLIE must be high on to seventy years of age, but he is active and sturdy. His hair is white and his eyes are blue. His face is cleanly shaven and ruddy with the glow of unimpaired health. In his attire he is the personification of neatness. He steps along briskly, and there is scarcely any one that he meets that he does not have a bow and kindly word for. There are, in fact, few men better known in Washington than Judge Andrew Wyllie, for over twenty years an associate justice of the District Supreme Court. Judge Wyllie is a native of Pennsylvania, where his father was the president of a college in the western part of the State. He came to Washington when a young man, married in Alexandria, but always practiced law here. He was one of the few Republicans in Virginia, and voted for Mr. Lincoln for President in 1861. Upon the reorganization of the District Court in 1863 he was appointed an associate justice, and retired from the position a few years since.—Washington Press.
